WEEKS SPOKE TO BUSINESS MEN

General Business Conditions and Preparedness Were the Senator's Topics

MADE PLEA FOR THE RAILROADS

Speaker Thought Roads Are Oppressed—Advocated Military Reserve System

SENATOR JOHN W. WEEKS of Massachusetts delivered an address before the members of the Chamber of Commerce in the a la carte room of the Lee-Huckins hotel, following a luncheon at 12:30 Thursday afternoon, on the general subjects of national business conditions and national preparedness.

Declaring first that he did not hold a brief for the railroads, Senator Weeks made a powerful argument in favor of the government's being more liberal in its policy towards the railroads and similar corporations, to cease promiscuous and undisciplined regulation.

To Much Legislation

Too hasty and too much legislation was the target of a few well-directed arguments. Mr. Weeks stated that the volume of laws—many of them of the Frank variety—passed annually by the national congress and state legislatures was of such dimensions that no one man could grasp them. "If we had one-fifth of the number of our present laws, and this one-fifth were carefully thought out

In advance of its passage this country would be far better off," he said.

The next point in the address—and one, perhaps, that startled his hearers, was to the effect that if the European war had not been in progress during the past year, business conditions in the United States would have been unbelieveably bad. Here he again referred to the railroads and the manner in which the government has interfered in their business.

"The railroads are the arteries of this country," he said, "and you might as well expect a man with hardened arteries to run a good foot race as to expect over-regulated railroads to attend to their transportation business efficiently and at a fair profit to their stockholders."

National Preparedness

Next he touched upon the subject of national preparedness. "The United States should have sufficient power—military power—to defend its own coasts and interior," he said, amidst continued applause. Then he outlined in detail a system of maintaining military and naval reserves much in the same manner as Germany. He advocated the shortening of the term of enlistment, the creation of a board of military defense composed of efficient and tried officers of the army and navy and the ridding of the military branch of the government of the effects of constant political changes.

HOKE SMITH ON COTTON

ATLANTA, Oct. 14.—Senator Hoke Smith in a statement on the decision of Federal Judge Hough, holding unconstitutional the Smith-Lever cotton futures bill, declared today that it is hardly probable that "the courts can hold that the bill falls within the requirements of the constitution which provide that revenue bills must originate in the house."

"The senate passed a cotton exchange bill," said Senator Smith, "but the public laid aside the senate bill and passed a substitute. The taxing feature of the law originated entirely in the house."

"The cotton exchanges would make an inexcusable blunder to abandon these contracts for if the present law is successfully attacked a substitute covering the contracts will, in my opinion, quickly be passed when congress meets."

NOTICE SERVED BY INSPECTORS

Tick Eradication Workers Will Not Stand For Auditor's Reductions

WILL QUIT NOVEMBER 1

Gault May Decide to Insure Their Pay to Keep Work Under Way

SIXTEEN state inspectors in tick eradication have notified President Frank Gault of the board of agriculture that they will quit November 1, because of dissatisfaction in regard to getting their pay, and the basis on which it is computed following a system introduced by State Auditor Howard, according to President Gault. All told, there are twenty-two of these inspectors doing field duty in tick work. They are paid a salary and are allowed horse hire, all computed on a daily schedule, and the claims when finally allowed by the state auditor reduced the pay of some of the inspectors to such an extent that they have notified the president of the board of agriculture that they will work no longer than November 1, under the system. This is the announcement today at the board of agriculture, given out by President Gault.

Will Insure Pay

President Gault said today that the tick work is of such importance especially at this time of year that he will try to keep the inspectors at work a while longer, if possible. He may personally insure their pay, and risk being reimbursed later, in order that the work may not be retarded. At this time of year the most effective work in tick eradication is being done. It is necessary that all the men possible be kept at work. Later, the weather will not permit dipping cattle nor can disinfection otherwise be done effectively.

Two Are Laid Off

Two employees of the department, Leslie Bush, superintendent of the livestock division, and J. C. Gilling, bookkeeper, have been laid off effective October 15, and it is possible another employee in the dairy department will be stricken from the list of employees because of an opinion from the attorney general that this employee cannot be paid out of a certain fund.

The suspension of these employees, however, is done from an economical standpoint. All accounts are being kept by each one of the district agricultural schools, and it is deemed unnecessary to maintain an extra bookkeeper. Clerks in the office will look after the clerical work relative to the livestock division. Bush has been at the head of the livestock division for several years, and is considered well posted on quarantine conditions in the state.

President Gault feels keenly the disappointment that anything should cause the tick eradication work to be retarded, especially at this time of year. He has taken exceptions to the system employed by Auditor Howard and does not believe the latter has authority to take the steps he has, but will try to manage his department the best he can. If his inspectors are too dissatisfied to continue in the service of the state he will not encourage them to stay, unless he offers to insure their pay in the way he has suggested.

Howard Feels Justified

State Auditor Howard maintains steadfastly that he is authorized by an opinion from the attorney general to impose regulations in the handling of claims and that he is justified in requiring that before a claim is allowed there must be consistent evidence of indebtedness on file in his office, and that he will continue this system throughout every department of state. He wishes to give the assurance, however, that this system is not directed alone to the agricultural department but that it applies to all as well.

In disposing with the services of the bookkeeper accounts will be kept directly with the heads of each of the agricultural schools. They will be checked over by the board and then submitted to the auditor as they have been in the past.

PROVIDENT ASS'N TO MILLER BLD'G

Claud Miller Proffers Use of Entire Third Floor of Structure to Organization

AS A result of the financial straits of the United Provident association and its need of more commodious quarters, Claud Miller, of the Fair Drug Store, has offered the use of the entire unoccupied third floor of the building in which the Fair is located for a sewing room. In a few days the five machines of the Provident association, which occupy so much of the little available space in its headquarters at 412 West Grand, will be transferred to the new room, which, by the way, is well lighted and ventilated and one of the best suited for its purpose to be found in the city.

Work will begin under the new conditions. Miss E. N. Gould, matron of the association, also stated that a recent donation of the use of a room for the storage of furniture and other articles of bulk which will relieve greatly the congested condition of the headquarters, where offices are still to be maintained.

Besides the lack of money, one of the greatest needs of the association at present is furniture and other household furnishings such as dishes, curtains, carpets, etc. One of the directors of the association recently paid a visit to a family reported to be in distress and found but one chair in the house. The chair was given to the director, while the mother, occupied a box. In another instance the visiting nurse found a family totally without beds or bedding. The father—a cripple—the mother and five children were all compelled to sleep on the floor and had but few bedclothes. Two beds and bedding were sent to them by the association, which exhausted the supply.

HEALDTON OIL OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Within Short Time 40,000 Barrels a Day Will Be Carried

MARKET conditions in the Healdton oil field will be materially improved in the next two weeks, in the opinion of Art Walker, Inspector of that field under the direction of the corporation commission. That the market conditions will be controlled by the production given to the market is his belief, and this being true there will probably be no occasion for the commission to invoke its authority under the new oil conservation law. However, the commission will proceed to do so when complaint is presented.

Within the next two weeks, when pipe lines under construction are completed, the potential capacity of pipe lines will be about 40,000 barrels a day. This much oil will then be taken from the field to refineries, and with the storage capacity allowed the potential production of the field will be about 100 per cent. The Magnolia is now completing a loop from the field to its line at Addington, about 10 miles away. When completed this will give the Magnolia two six-inch pipes directly from the field to connect with the eight-inch pipe at Addington, which runs the oil to its refinery at Fort Worth. This one loop will increase the run about 6,000 barrels a day. Then when the Dallasville refinery completes its pipe line, which will be about two weeks, this will increase the pipe line facilities of the field about 15,000 barrels a day. So that with the output of the pipe lines as at present and the increase, it is estimated that the lines will take care of at least 40,000 barrels a day.

Conditions in the field improve daily, says Mr. Walker. The crude oil is now selling at 40 cents a barrel, and it is the belief of all men in the field that it will go higher when the market demands, and that this condition must ultimately govern in the oil industry.

MERELY LOOSENING SWORD

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 14.—In response to a request for a definition of the attitude of Greece, King Constantine today made the following statement to the Associated Press:

"Greece is merely loosening her sword in its scabbard. She menaces no one. But she cannot permit that events shall constitute a menace to the integrity of the nation or the freedom of the Greek people."

"It is my duty to preserve my country from the danger of destruction through becoming involved in the general European conflict. I hope to do this at all hazards—if it is possible."

Requisition Denied; Ben T. Head Cleared

Prominent Lawton Business Man Establishes Alibi and Charges Against Him Are Dismissed By Co. Attorney

All Oklahoma county actions pending against Ben T. Head, president of the Cotton Growers Loan Company and owner of a big gig at Lawton, were dropped Thursday when Governor Williams refused to honor the requisition for Head, requested by the governor of Kentucky.

Head was arrested here some time ago on notices received from Kentucky, saying that he was wanted for selling $1,000 worth of fraudulent bank stock in Boyd county, that state. He obtained his release on habeas corpus proceedings, and was re-arrested on a fugitive from justice warrant. This last proceeding was necessarily dropped when the requisition was not honored by Governor Williams. Head proved an alibi, showing conclusively that he was not in Kentucky at the time the alleged fraudulent sale took place.
